

Dear students!

Do you like being creative?

Do you like writing texts?

Or producing a podcast/video etc.?

Then we have a challenge for you ...

Imagine you wake up one day and the whole world is upside down!

This is what happened to Joseph Flavill who had fallen into a coma in March 2020 just before the world was hit by the Covid Pandemic.

'How do you explain the pandemic to someone who has been in a coma?'

Here you can watch his story ...

Now it's your turn ...

Imagine you are Joseph's friend. How would you explain to him how the world and your life have changed during the time of his coma?

- Decide on a creative way to bring across your thoughts (video message, picture story, comic, letter, podcast, etc.)
- Refer to various areas of life (social life, schools, businesses, economy, health system, travelling, psychological aspects etc).

✉ Please send your entry to both of these addresses-

(deadline is Friday, November 7th):

N.Meyer-Wolf@bbswinsen.de

K.Weise-Lehmann@bbswinsen.de

Have fun!

The best three entries are going to receive a prize¹ and of course a certificate!

Please don't be afraid that your English might not be good enough! We are NOT looking for the perfect, flawless English BUT we are looking for an honest message to Joseph, reflecting on life in the pandemic.

We are looking forward to your ideas and all entries will be appreciated!

P.S.: If you have any further questions please send us an e-mail (addresses see above).

¹ 1st - 3rd prize: 20 €, 15 € and 10 € vouchers for our school cafeteria
